

The Suspects

Makala Wahini

Detective Wahini is one of Hawaii's finest detectives, but her investigative skills are second only to her uncanny ability to intuit her reckless partner, Halulu (Hal) Okole's every move. She has saved Hal's life no less than thirty six times, a debt she won't let him forget when the bar tab arrives. Makala is vivacious, independent and strong, is a crack shot and has a mean right hook.

Ha'iku Mahalulu

Ha'iku is an entrepreneur and co-owner in a luau dancer doll stand, which attracts tourists from all over the islands because of their renowned selection of dancing dolls, typically displayed on tourists' dashboards upon their return home. Ha'iku is friendly and enthusiastic, and is well-known all over the islands for her happy disposition.

Keiki Kealoha

Keiki is the daughter of one of Oahu's most treasured men. Her family has owned a large piece of stunning beach front property for generations, and vowed to keep it, despite the multi-million dollar offers they received almost weekly from developers. She is passionate about Hawaii and the original Polynesian culture, and is not afraid to stand up for her family and Hawaii when she feels someone is speaking ill of either.

Apikalia Newalu

Apikalia is the bartender at the Tiki Bar at the Make Kaka Resort, and has been for two years. Friendly and outgoing, Apikalia is perfectly suited for the job of serving tourists - she is beautiful, friendly and loves to listen to the tourists speak about where they come from and what they do "back home", although the hefty tips she earns from them surely helps with her happy, obliging disposition. Apikalia wears a flower in her hair.

Leia Mika

Leia is a new addition to the Make Kaka Resort family. Working as a chambermaid, Leia spends her days changing sheets and scrubbing toilets - not exactly a life of luxury, but it does allow her to spend her days in Hawaii, which she claims is a dream come true. Leia is not a local, and not much is yet known about this mysterious newcomer. Like all of the maids at the Make Kaka Resort, Leia wears a traditional black and white maid uniform.

Kamea Pukahi

Kamea is the headlining act at the Make Kaka resort. Her traditional Kahiko style of performance embodies the more traditional Polynesian form of dancing, and while she incorporates the more Western-influenced (Auana) form of hula into her performances, she believes that the ancient form of hula dancing should be the focus of her nightly performances on the Make Kaka stage. Together with another performer, Bane Natua, Kamea teaches a halua - a hula class - for tourists on the beach each evening. Kamea wears her performance costume, as she and Bane were preparing for their performance later this evening.

Gail Johnson

A tourist staying at the Make Kaka Resort, Gail is thrilled to be in Hawaii, and is desperate to take in all of it and experience everything she can. Having won the trip from a sweepstake, Gail feels lucky to be in Hawaii and takes pictures of everything and everyone. Gail is making the most of her trip with her positive attitude and making friends at the resort. Gail wears a long, light dress and would not be caught without her camera at the ready.

Halulu (Hal) Okole

Halulu, more commonly known as "Hal", is a detective, and one of the island's most notorious. His quick-witted sarcasm is second only to his shoot-first-and-ask-questions-later approach to law enforcement, and it seems not a week goes by without him ending up in a sticky situation of some sort. Good thing his partner, the vivacious Makala Wahini, is usually not far away, and has made bailing him out of dangerous situations her number one priority.

Keanu Keawe

Ex-surfing champion Keanu Keawe is a native of Hawaii, and a celebrated local celebrity. In spite of his surfing fame, he recently retired from competing to start his own business, teaching women on vacation how to surf. His business is thriving, partially thanks to his startling good looks and his charisma. Naturally, he has a reputation for being a real ladies' man.

Jackson Haines

Jackson Haines is one of the richest real estate moguls on the island. His track record is immaculate, and his client list reads like a who's who of celebrities and the world's wealthy. He is a no-nonsense businessman who thinks of nothing but the bottom line, a practice responsible for his unbelievable wealth and success.