Bella Ricci

Bella Ricci has a captivating air of mystery and elegance. A jewelry designer, Bella’s creations are sought after by society’s elite, and she travels the world to deliver custom made pieces to queens, princesses and socialites alike. Despite her travel schedule, she's a born and raised Venetian and when she's home, she is a staple at the hottest parties and most exclusive events. Bella is charming and sophisticated, and wears her own jewels with pride in her creations.

Ranni Fiore

Ranni Fiore is a charismatic and charming presence at the masquerade gala at The Biblioteca Marciana. Once a professional consultant in the world of codes and encryption, Ranni now dedicates her life to unraveling the mysteries of ancient sites and deciphering ancient texts. When she's not at an ancient site or in some dusty basement of an ancient archive, she spends her time in Venice. Ranni's approachable nature and warm smile put even complete strangers at ease.

Ravenna Belfi

Ravenna Belfi is a highly sought-after master art restorer from Venice, but she spends her time traveling all over Europe and beyond for her work. A regular consultant for The Louvre, The Grand Egyptian Museum and even here at The Biblioteca Marciana, Ravenna's discerning eye and gentle elegance make her a fine addition to the attendees at the Masquerade Gala here tonight.

Elsa Perez

Head of the "Friends of the Library" for the past five years, Elsa Perez is the mastermind behind tonight's masquerade gala at the Biblioteca Marciana. Known for her charisma and charm, Elsa has brought together society's wealthy and elite to benefit the library, making sure that those with the 'deepest of deep pockets' brought their cheque books tonight! Her association with the library runs deep, and as head of the Friends of the Library, she has become dear friends with many of those at the Biblioteca Marciana, including the victim, Leonardo Venizio.

Emmie Agosti

Emmie Agosti, is the Chief Archivist of the Biblioteca Marciana. A native Venetian, Emmie has dedicated her life to preserving and cataloging the library's treasures, and is immensely proud to be a part of the library. Though she typically prefers the company of books to that of people, Emmie knows the guests at the Masquerade Gala tonight have deep pockets, and so, she smiles and mingles with the attendees of the Masquerade Gala with her unique soft-spoken charm.

Juliana Moreau

Juliana Moreau commands attention at the masquerade gala, her presence as formidable as the fortune she has amassed as a venture capitalist. Juliana is an essential member of The Friends of The Library, and earned her spot in the elite group through her generous donations to the Biblioteca Marciana over the years. Known for her sharp business acumen, she has a reputation of being a bit of a "shark", and has an intimidating presence. Despite her reputation, Juliana's commitment to the library reveals a softer side, and her contributions ensure that the library continues to thrive.

Amalia Costa

Amalia Costa is a professional travel writer, with aspirations of writing for National Geographic. While she's not there yet, she's known for her evocative travel essays and eye for overlooked details in the most travelled of places. She moves through the Masquerade Gala with quiet confidence, observing more than she speaks, content to linger at the edges of conversation rather than command the room. While others are swept up in the spectacle of the gala, Amalia seems more interested in the architecture and art. Amalia is reserved but perceptive, clearly someone who notices far more than she lets on.

Danise Romano

Danise spends her days rubbing shoulders with celebrities, and her evenings in Venice society. As a freelance script consultant, she is the one movie executives consult to create a box office smash, and her track record is impeccable. When she's not working on her next script, Danise can be found soaking in the magic that is Venice, and the pulse of the city is an endless source of inspiration for her. Danise is distinguished and elegant, and loves traveling the world for her work.

Elodie Dubois

Resident of Venice, Elodie is a master glass maker on the island of Murano. She was taught the skill by her parents, who were world-renowned glass makers, as were her grandparents and her great grandparents. In fact, Elodie's ancestors have been glass makers since the Italian Renaissance, and the secrets of creating the finest glass in the world have been passed down to her. Needless to say, her skills are in high demand, and just as her ancestors created glassware for kings and queens throughout the ages, Elodie takes commissions from modern kings, queens and royalty from all over Europe.
