

The Suspects

©SHOT IN THE DARK MYSTERIES INCORPORATED

Lady Araminta Steeles

Lady Araminta Steeles, widow of Mr. Phelan Steeles, is the lady of Harrison House. She is a youthful widow with just one daughter, Evangeline. Lady Steeles ensures the day-to-day running of the manor as well as the collection of taxes from those in the nearby towns and countryside. Lady Steeles has a stern disposition, but is the epitome of grace and elegance, dressing always in white. While there is no proof, many believe her to be a sorceress, and because of her all-white attire, she has earned the nickname The White Lady. Lady Steeles wears a white dress, minimal cogs save for her hair pieces and cuffs and carries a white parasol.

Miss Evangeline Steeles

Daughter of Ms. Araminta Steeles, Evangeline is a lively and outspoken young lady just coming to society. Her 21st birthday is the reason for the fete this evening, and gifts have been arriving all day from admirers near and far. The Steeles' have another reason to celebrate though, as on this, Evangeline's 21st birthday, they are also announcing her engagement, to Mr. Bartholemew Payne, one of the most eligible bachelors in the county! Miss Steeles is beautiful with rosy lips, a flawless complexion and a fine figure. She wears a beautiful dress with a corset adorned with metal, leather and cogs.

Lyra Cross

Noted alchemist Lyra Cross is a woman in a man's field. Having studied under one of the most renowned alchemists of all time, Lyra is skilled in all sorts of potions and draughts, and serves a number of people all over the county and beyond. Strong-willed and yet comforting at the same time, many of Lyra's patients insist that she herself is the cure for what ails them, not what she carries in her bottles. She goes where her customers require on her trusty Trike, which means she can usually be found wearing riding gear and a pair of goggles thrown atop her head. She also wears a cuff with spaces for vials of commonly-used concoctions that she carries with her at all times.

The Seer

Rumoured to be a woman of "The Sight", The Seer has a name, but no one actually knows it, and she does not introduce herself with a name, which is why she is simply referred to as "The Seer". A secretive and skittish woman, The Seer speaks cryptically and rarely answers a question with a simple yes or no. She walks with a cane, atop which stands a sparkling crystal that she claims aids in her psychic visions. The Seer wears a long dress and carries pouches on her belt, the contents of which vary from runes to herbs to potions.

Jessamine West

Daughter of head steward Bertram West, Jessamine is a young woman in her twenties, who now works for The Steeles in Harrison House. Having lived in Harrison House her whole life, she has grown up with Evangeline Steeles, and the two used to play together in The Violet Forest. However, with age comes propriety and as they grew, each child had to fall into their station. Jessamine is a soft-spoken young woman who doesn't miss a thing. With a love of all things industrial, even her work dresses are decked out with gears, and she finds a million uses for them in her day-to-day duties.

Mr. Ivan Burnet

Adventurer and nobleman, Mr. Ivan Burnet is a bright-eyed with an infectious smile. Having recently returned from a stint abroad, Ivan Burnet has been granted a stay at Harrison House. But his stay is not entirely for pleasure, as he has been charged with delivering a gift to party honouree, Miss Evangeline Steeles, from her late Uncle, Orpheus Moon. Mr. Burnet has an easy manner and joyful eyes, despite the fact that he lost arm recently in a train accident. He has a robotic arm in its stead, which he insists works better than the original.

Mr. Bertram West

The head house steward at Harrison House for decades, Mr. West is devoted to the manor, and the Steeles family. A man who enjoys his solitude, West is responsible for the running of the house, organization of the other servants and ensuring the Steeles have everything they need. He is diligent, precise and proper, although he has been known to use his dry wit when the situation arises.

Mr. Freeman

The head gardener at Harrison House, Mr. Freeman is charged with keeping the grounds immaculate. Together with a small team of laborers, he ensures the hedges are trimmed and the vegetable gardens plentiful. His "green thumb" has won Harrison House awards for both the flowers and vegetables each year since Mr. Freeman arrived. He is a stern, proper man who will not speak with the Steeles unless spoken to first. Mr. Freeman can usually be found inside the maintenance shed or in the gardens.